Red Cross Class Present Lamp to Dr. Auringer

Dr. Horace E. Auringer was presented an I. E. S. electric floor lamp by members of the First Aid Class and the American Legion at the closing session of the First Aid School conducted Tuesday night in the high school building. The presentation was made by Principal Irving R. Gladstone.

Mr. Gladstone prefaced his remarks on the presentation by stating that the American Legion was rendering a distinct service to the community in promoting such a school for it is a high type of citizenship." We are glad to have it in the school building," he said, as it shows that the school is doing the right kind of work." He then presented the gift of the class.

Dr. Auringer responded by saying it was a distinct surprise. He said, "The course has not yet ended for we have one more week of tests, which makes this gift more surprising. I have been only too glad to do this for the Legion and those interested in the work. It has been hard to get here every Tuesday night at 7 and work for two hours. But the fact that there was such interest is a credit to the people of the village. I have been glad to work with this proficient group of students who have been interested in the work. Those who have earned them. Thank you all very much for the gift."

There were 26 present at the closing class. A review of first aid was given, some examinations taken in artificial respiration and various carries for injured persons were demonstrated.

For the past 25 years he has been owner and publisher of the Perry Herald and in addition to putting out a good newspaper, he wrote one of the finest weekly columns in the weekly publishing field. His loss will be mourned by the profession and by the readers who looked for his philosophic comment each week.

Sterling Cole Opposed to Naval Program

W. Sterling Cole, representative in Congress from the 37th District, is being showered with praise as a result of his refusal as a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee to vote for the expenditure of $1,200,000,000 on increased armament. Mr. Cole declares he favors adequate naval defense but is opposed to a program that may plunge the United States into another world conflict.

His position is endorsed by the Ithaca Journal which says editorially under the heading, "A Congressman of Courage and Good Sense":

"The people of Ithaca and of the 37th Congressional District owe a debt of gratitude to Congressman W. Sterling Cole. He is a man, fortunately a young man, who refuses to be dragooned or fooled into supporting a program and policy which on its face is fraudulent, a very expensive fraud at that. Mr. Cole wants to be shown. He had the courage and sense of fairness to vote for consideration at least of the Ludlow Amendment, and he had the courage and independence and common sense to vote against plunging this country into an armament race by way of the navy bill.

"The Journal is confident that thousands of his constituents, regardless of party affiliation, will remember that when they go to the polls in the fall. Mr. Cole needs no formal endorsement from party committees. He already has it from the people of the district.

Sunday morning in his sermon at the North Presbyterian Church in Elmira, the minister, the Rev. William H. Willits, D. D., asked the members of his capacity congregation to write Mr. Cole individually expressing their deep grattitude to him for his stand in opposing the remarkable increase in naval appropriations requested by the administration. Similar requests were made by other ministers in the Congressional district.

One week ago the Tompkins County Republican Committee endorsed Mr. Cole's stand on all questions of utmost importance to the nation, as well as his district, and urged his return to office for another term.

Mounting Relief Cost Cause Grave Concern Here

Relief figures for the month of February have been released by various towns and communities to show the increasing expenditures for operating relief departments.

There was some criticism of an article appearing in the Addison Advertiser last week relative to relief costs in Addison. Figures appeared in an Elmira paper, Wednesday morning to show that the cost of relief in Hornell, a city of 17,000 was $4,754. This is compared to the cost in Addison of $1,500 during the month of February. Another figure shows that $2,943 was spent in the city of Little Falls in Central New York with a population of 13,400.

With this rising cost in mind the local welfare officials are seeking work for men on relief. An invitation is being extended to farmers and others needing men to call upon the department and workers will be furnished.

New Milford, Pa.—Milton Woodruff, 20, was arrested in Oneida, N. Y., for passing bad checks and is in jail here.

Model Airplanes Shown In Crane Agency Window By Tobin and Newman

The patience and care in working in miniature are demonstrated in three airplanes on exhibit in the Crane Insurance Agency. One was made by James Tobin, one by William Newman and one on which they cooperated. Each plane is different from the other in size, type and workmanship. An examination of the three shows how attention to detail in these small model planes gives one an increased idea of the construction of the larger planes.

A FAIR, SOUND SOLUTION

Last week the columns of this paper carried editorially some facts and figures taken from the report of the Regents Inquiry into the Character and Cost of Education. The length of this report, condensed though it was, practically forbade any analysis of it. Yet the matter is of such importance to all residents of the rural sections of the state, the report should be discussed while it is fresh in mind. In fact the report emphasized the fact it was being put out earlier than intended "so that discussion . . . . may be initiated now."

A close study of the report brings two facts uppermost to mind. First, that children in rural districts of the state are not receiving as good educational advantages as they are entitled to have. Second, that thousands of small, rural districts operating independently in thousands of little sections of the state, constitute an expensive, inefficient system of imparting education to the rural school children. You may throw the report away, forget every word of it except those two facts which are delineated through it, and you are still face to face with the fact the Inquiry is the prelude to a complete change in our rural educational system.

There are 6,294 rural common school districts in the state each composed of a few farms. When the country was new and farms were small those schools used to have a school population of 20 to 30 or more pupils. How about it now? Well there are four schools operating in the state at great expense without a single pupil. There are many schools operating with one, two, three and four pupils. There are 2,075 districts running with less than 10 pupils a district. And there are 2,804 districts with from 10 to 20 pupils. It needs no expert mathematician to figure out the conclusion that running schools with from one to 10 pupils is highly expensive. The fact is, in a school with four pupils or less it cost an average of $397 per pupil a year. While the costs in a fine central school average $139, including the cost of transporting the pupil to and from the school.

Of even greater importance than the matter of unnecessary cost comes the committe's contention that it is better for the pupil to attend a fine central school. Not to go greatly into detail, it is a foregone fact that the district schools are not equipped to teach high school subjects, while few can give efficient instruction above the sixth grade. Tests made by the Inquiry with children in the sixth grade revealed that pupils in central schools excelled those in non-central schools, especially in reading, spelling, geography and arithmetic.

It is enlightening to persons who have been unalterably opposed to centralization of schools to learn that the Regents expects the entire state will be consolidated into larger districts inside of two years. The plan, as told in this paper last week, is to create a temporary state commission of five members, which will appoint regional school district committees, one in each noncity judicial district. These regional committees will prepare the initial plans for the new central districts. They will hold hearings and give local citizens ample opportunity to be heard. The organization of the new districts will be completed by the calling of a district meeting and the election of a board of education under the existing provisions of the central school act.

This act, the provisions of which will govern the new district established, continues in operation all of the schools brought together in the centralized district, until the voters of the original district vote to close their school. This is a guarantee that no "little red school house" will be abolished by the program, until those who live around the school vote to close it and send their children to the central district. This is a continuation of the "home rule" theory which has prevailed in our rural state school system since it was established in 1812.

This is a democratic method of attaining the objective desired by all good citizens — better schools for our children with more economical expenditure of the funds to run them. It is a method which forces no district to enter a centralized system without the majority vote of the legal voters.

If a centralized district is established at Addison (which is the geographical center for a large number of rural districts), it would be possible for any district in the area mapped, say the Audinwood district, to refuse to vote to come in. The voters of that district could then continue to run their school as an independent unit. That is possible. Yet it is hardly probable that the voters of that school or any other in the central district would penalize their children by holding them at home (at least the older ones) when they could have the greater educational advantages of attending a better school.

Altogether the Young report brings a common sense solution to the big problem of re-districting our rural school system. The more one studies it, the more one becomes convinced it is a sound, democratic method of giving our rural children better educational opportunities with more economical use of school money.

THE TVA MESS

Is the lid to be blown off the reeking mess which parades under the label of TVA or will the Administration succeed in getting the whole matter hushed up without a Congressional investigation? Last week Mr. Roosevelt called the warring members of his three board of directors into the White House to try to iron out their differences behind closed doors, but indications were that neither Chairman Morgan nor his two associates would back down.

In fact a few days before Chairman Morgan issued a statement in which he said: "The TVA desires a fair and open hearing, which is full and impartial and without any predilections for or against any person or against the TVA itself. The investigating body should be provided with sufficient funds to make possible a first hand examination of the obscure financial records of the power program and of all important phases of the TVA which come into question. The fertilizer policy was adopted without being disclosed to the TVA Board, and no impartial technical appraisal and report of the fertilizer program has ever been made to the board or to the public".

As Director Lilienthal is administrator of the power program, and Director Harcourt Morgan is administrator of the fertilizer program, it is not difficult to see that a wide gulf of disputed opinions separate them from their chairman, Arthur Morgan. One of the latest odors of scandal came when Senator Berry of Tennessee tried to collect several millions from the government for some marble leases he secured from land owners at a dollar apiece. As the land where the leases were located was to be flooded by water above Norris Dam the Senator conceived the brilliant idea of getting damages for this property. During Chairman Morgan's absence from a meeting of the board his two associate directors agreed to have a conciliator appointed to adjudicate the claim. But when Chairman Morgan asserted the claim was a bald attempt to defraud the government they agreed to condemnation commission proceedings which ruled Berry suffered not up to $87 millions as some witnesses testified. Instead the commission decided Berry had no claim at all.

The TVA mess may be smoothed over temporarily with a coating of whitewash, but eventually its dirty linen must be hung out on the line for the public to see. The sooner a Congressional investigation is made of it the better. TVA has been spending tax money with as careless abandon as if the funds grew on trees, and whether there has been open fraud or not, the waste has been just about as criminal as far as the people are concerned.

THE MODERN JUGGERNAUT

Suppose that, on a given day, we rounded up nearly forty thousand American men, women and children, herded them into a field, and there proceeded to slaughter them. Suppose that, at the same time, we wounded, blinded, crippled and otherwise harmed several hundred thousand more.

Horrible? Impossible? More barbaric than the barbarians? Of course it is—but, in effect, that is what happens on American highways every year. The slaughter doesn't occur on a single day, but over 365 days. And instead of killing the victims with shell and rifle fire, and gas and grenades, we use that well known servant of mankind which can also be a monster of destruction—the automobile.

If an airplane falls and kills ten people the fact is headlined throughout the country and millions feel a sense of horror. If a ship sinks and 50 men die, the entire world knows it in a few minutes, and world-wide sympathy is extended to the victims and their survivors. Bue when automobiles crash and people die horribly as a result, we note the fact absently, and turn the page to the comic strips.

Our people are criminally negligent in driving automobiles. And America is criminally complacent in its attitude of more or less bored indifference toward the accident toll.

Juggernaut is no more — but the automobile more than fulfills its gory role.

VERSE TO A BUSINESS MAN

Sock him on the kisser, put him on the pan,
Roll him in the gutter—He's a business man.
Pillory the sucker, poke him in the eye,
Jump upon his torso—He's a business guy!
Has he built a business to enormous heights?
Brand him as a cheater—Never mind his rights!
Does he give employment? Is the payroll big?
Put the bum in irons! Toss him in the brig!
Does he pay in taxes what the law calls for?
Why, the dirty reptile should be paying more!
Blast him in the headlines, charge some crooked acts,
Let this be your slogan: "Anything but facts!"
Has he made some money? Get his scalp today!
Say, where does he think he's living, anyway?

The Trouble in T. V. A.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NOW that the quarrel within the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority has become a public controversy, it is plain, I think, that there is needed a radical reorganization of the management and control of the enterprise. For no three men, whoever they were, could hope to operate successfully the T. V. A. as it is now organized. The quarreling and the suspicions and the misunderstandings within the board, between the board and those with whom it has to deal, are, it seems to me, the inevitable result of an essentially unworkable and unsound organization.

The T. V. A. is a public corporation operating under broad powers laid down in a charter granted by Congress. The powers of this corporation are entrusted to a board of directors consisting of three men, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan, and Mr. David Lilienthal. Clearly, it must have been the intention of Congress to vest in these three men the general control of the whole undertaking, to make them responsible for seeing that the intentions of Congress are in fact carried out.

But what happened? The three members of the board proceeded to make themselves not merely the trustees of the enterprise but its actual administrators. They divided the enterprise into three parts. Dr. A. E. Morgan became the manager of the dam construction. Dr. H. A. Morgan became the manager of the fertilizer and agricultural activities. Mr. Lilienthal became the manager of the electrical power program. In his own province each director has a free hand, first, because no one of them could hope to know much about what was going on in the other two provinces, and then, because any two directors could by voting consistently together guarantee to each other a free hand in their separate provinces.

In June of last year the board itself recognized that this was an unsound arrangement, and attempted a reorganization. But nothing much seems to have come of it.

The outcome of turning the directors into the managers has been that there is no board of directors. The managers are responsible to no one, either in the formation of policy or in making an accounting for their acts. They are a triumvirate, each supreme in his own province, each making his own policies, each the judge of his own performance. The board, which was supposed to represent Congress, does not represent it; for it is composed of men who pass on their own actions. There is no board to which an appeal can be taken from the decisions of the managers. There is no board which is free or able to control the enterprise as a whole.

The failure to distinguish the functions of management and control is, it seems to me, at the root of the whole trouble. Dr. Arthur Morgan has been too busy building dams to exercise control over the fertilizer and power programs. Dr. Harcourt Morgan has been so busy with fertilizer and agriculture that he has had to leave the dams to Dr. Arthur Morgan and the utility problem to Mr. Lilienthal. And Mr. Lilienthal is so deeply immersed in the fight over the utilities that his fellow directors cannot hope to follow his actions in detail.

So there is no board, representing Congress, to determine large questions of policy. There are merely three separate administrators interpreting the charter as each thinks best and improvising policy as he goes along. There is no board, representing Congress, to which the managers have to report. There is no board to which a dispute among the managers can be taken for impartial decision. There is no board to which customers, clients and competitors can appeal for the redress of their grievances.

Who is watching the enterprise to see whether Mr. Lilenthal's utility program is in fact the program that Congress intended? Mr. Lilienthal. Who is watching Dr. Harcourt Morgan's fertilizer and agricultural program to see whether he is carrying out the intent of the act? Dr. Harcourt Morgan. Who is watching the dam construction? Dr. Arthur Morgan who is building the dams. This is a preposterous way to organize an undertaking which exercises such immense authority delegated by Congress. Between Congress and the actual management there should be a representative board of control which governs the delegation of this vast authority. The system of the T. V. A. is like that which would prevail in General Motors if the board of directors consisted of the operating heads of the various plants.

It is clear, I think, that if Congress is to delegate large powers to agencies like the T. V. A., then it must set up over them trustees to control the managers of the undertaking. It cannot let the managers themselves control it. For then nobody really controls it. And when the managers quarrel, as they surely will, because they are not under any genuine control, Congress cannot possibly know whom to believe. And so the public cannot know whom to believe. There are only the self-justifying statements of men defending their own acts.

This condition is one which only Congress can investigate and remedy. For the question at bottom is not whether one Morgan or the other is right in his allegations, but whether Congress can devise an organization under which it can control so much delegated authority

It would be a thousand pities if T. V. A. failed and were discredited because it was badly organized and was mismanaged. For in any long view the T. V. A. is the prototype of a public agency that the nation must learn how to make successful if it is to conserve and to develop wisely the basic natural resources of the nation.

A Parents' Revolt

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

I HAVE been following the reports from the Convention of the American Association of School Administrators at Atlantic City with a great deal of interest. And it has been heartening to find a few harsh words spoken there by teachers, apropos the present system of American education. According to the reports, the group who called themselves "Essentialists" were promptly reprimanded by the Teachers College group, who accused them of drawing support from "political and economic reactionaries" (the words are Professor Dewey's).

But I think it would be well for the Progressivists to pay some close attention to what the Essentialists say. For, unless I read the signs of the times incorrectly, there is brewing in this country a parents' revolt against the way that their children are being spoiled in many of the progressive schools. I hear it on all sides. Parents complain that their children are, first of all, terribly unmannerly. If they have been trained in any sort of decent use of the English language at home, it is ruined by a very few weeks in school. They complain that their children cannot read, write a legible hand or spell. Furthermore, the children show a complete disinclination to tackle any kind of work which does not immediately capture their imaginations and interest. The idea that there is any satisfaction to be found in doing even a dull task methodically and well seems completely non-existent.

Just the other day, at my luncheon table, the thirteen-year-old daughter of a friend—a child whom I dearly love—assured me brightly, that she "just couldn't learn Latin." She also said a little ruefully that she never had learned to spell, but that she thought "after all, spelling didn't matter much." She was so anxious to express her ideas, she said, that she didn't have time to stop and think how to spell the words.

This, of course, is perfectly ridiculous. She is an exceptionally clever and gifted little girl. She has a very high intelligence quotient. She can, therefore, learn Latin. And if she can't, she can never learn any other language. She may, in the course of time, if her interests or necessity demand it, "pick up" German or French, or any other modern language. But she is going to find it extremely difficult to discipline herself to the boring process of learning grammar, without which no one can speak or write a language correctly. She told me she wanted to be a journalist, and I assured her very firmly that in that case she would have to learn to spell, trivial as that small equipment seemed to be. She could hardly expect an editor or proof-reader to do it for her, and, besides, where are we going to find proof-readers, if they, too, share Sally's casualness!

In the course of the last two years I have had an opportunity to interview a considerable number of young women for stenographic or secretarial positions. All of them have had high school training, and most of them a year or so of college. The percentage of near-illiteracy is extremely high. And they are not stupid, by nature. First of all, one notices the serious lack of vocabulary. The expression of the average young American is confined to a few hundred words, outside the range of which the English language is Greek. Now, this seems to me to be extremely important. For the whole process of thought is tied to language; we think in words, and the precision of logical processes is intimately connected with precision of expression. Sloppy expression means sloppy thinking, and sloppy thinking on the part of people who are encouraged to think themselves educated bodes ill for the future of our democracy.

Doctor Johnson O'Connor at the Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken has made a special study of vocabulary in common use. He picked 150 common words—words which occur once in 100,000 in such widely distributed printed matter as newspapers. He tested thousands of cases. And he found that the average high school graduate knew only 94 of them, and the average college graduate only 123. Seventy per cent of all classes tested could give no definition, or an entirely false one, of "indemnify," "furtively," "dispense," "docile," "contrite." Ninety-four per cent could not define or describe the meaning of the word "subversive."

Senators and Hamilton Fish, please note!

I also observe from sad experience that young people who earn their livings reading proof cannot read. Let a sentence be dropped out of an article. The sentence before it makes sense. The sentence following it makes sense. But without the omitted sentence the whole argument makes no sense at all. If you have a young secretary who will notice that simple fact you are very lucky.

Memory training is noticeably bad. The most ingenious systems have to be worked out in simple offices, because human beings cannot be counted on to have stored anything whatever in their heads. When I was young I was told in school that the important thing was not to know a thing, but to know where you could find it. Fortunately my father, who was largely responsible for such education as I got, believed no such thing, and forced me to memorize masses of poetry and literature. Later I found that I didn't always have the Encyclopedia Britannica with me in Belgrade or Warsaw, and that ability to see something on a printed page, take note of it, and remember it, was one of the few useful things I had ever acquired.

We ought to set our faces against this tendency to mix up such things as educational training with politics and economics. It has reached the pass that if a person believes in a classical education he is condemned as being a Fascist. According to that definition, the fathers of American Democracy were all Fascists. One cannot read the Federalist without realizing how indebted Hamilton, Madison, and Jay were to Aristotle and the classical philosophers. And one often wishes that our present legislators and brain trusters had had the same training in methodical thinking, and were half as familiar with the accumulated wisdom of the past.

Yes, I foresee a parents' revolt. And a lot of teachers will join it. Some day the parents are going to rise up and demand that the teachers in our schools spend less of their time getting Teachers College Credits in the technique of teaching a subject, and learn more about the subject they teach. Our teachers know how to teach history, according to the most approved methods, but they are without a passionate interest in history. They know how to teach Latin, but they are not imbued with either the spirit of the language or the spirit of the world it expressed. Many of them would get much more that they could transmit to their pupils, out of vacations in Athens or Sicily, than out of vacations spent taking a Teachers College course. But they have to take the course, because without the credits, they can't expect promotion. And since they are one of the worst paid classes in our society, promotion matters to them.

1938 Program Explained At Conservation Meetings

A series of meetings to explain the 1938 Agricultural Conservation practices will be held throughout the county March 18 and 19, according to an announcement by Leon Dennis, Canisteo, president of the association.

The 1938 Agricultural Adjustment Act, of which the Agricultural Conservation Law is a part, contains a considerable amount of detail, and it is more important than ever that farmers become acquainted with this law at the earliest possible moment. This series of meetings will be the only one held in the county this year.

Several details of the 1938 Conservation Program have been modified as the new Act gives directions as to how payments are to be made and how they are to be divided between different commodities. As a result several of the rates originally announced must be revised because of a limit to the money authorized. However, total payments for most farms in New York State will be about the same as they have been.

Meetings will be called at.

Savona Grange Hall, 1:30 P. M., March 18.

Greenwood Grange Hall, 1:30 P. M., March 18.

Woodhull I. O. O. F. Hall, 8:00 P. M., March 18.

Fremont Town Hall, 8:00 P. M., March 18.

Prattsburg Grange Hall, 1:30 P. M., March 19.

Painted Post Village Hall, 1:30 P. M., March 19.

Cohocton Grange Hall, 8:00 P. M., March 19.

All farmers in the county who are interested in participating in this program are urged to attend one of these meetings.

Traffic Accidents Gain But Fatalities Decrease From 1937

Albany, March 2— While traffic accidents and injuries during January showed a slight gain over the corresponding month of last year, fatilities decreased more than 20 per cent, according to a report issued today by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Charles A, Harnett.

Commenting on the reduction, Commissioner Harnett said, "The fact that we experienced 48 fewer deaths on our streets and highways during the first month of 1938 as compared with the same period of last year, should not be permitted to lull us into a sense of false security. It must be remembered that January, 1937 was an outstanding month for motor vehicle deaths. A comparison with a month which had a normal accident experience such as January, 1936, reveals an increase of 33 deaths for the first month of this year.

"It is true that any reduction over last year indicates a trend in the right direction, but the highway problem is still with us and no one can foresee its complete elimination".

An analysis of the January, 1938 accident record compiled by the bureau statisticians disclosed the following;

Approximately 67 per cent of all persons killed were pedestrians.

More than 68 per cent of all fatal accidents occurred at night.

Speed, inattention and careless driving were responsible for more than 90 per cent of the fatal accidents directly chargeable to acts of the motorists.

More than 60 per cent of accidents resulting in death took place on wet and icy roads.

More than 8 of every 10 fatal accidents occurred where no method of traffic control existed.

In the geographic subdivision of the state to show the frequency and severity of accidents in these sections, it was found that motor fatalities in Rural New York decreased approximately 12 per cent, while a 60 per cent reduction in traffic death was credited to urban New York. Motor vehicle fatalities in the Metropolitan City remained constant.

Chain Store Tax Bill Opposed by Large Group

Albany, N. Y., March 10 - The Communist Party came out in the open as the chief supporter of the New York State anti-chain store tax bill.

Opposing the measure, in one of the largest mass protests the state capitol has ever witnessed, housewives, farmers and business men from every section of the state converged on this city, to protest the chain store tax before the Senate Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment, which held a public hearing on the bill.

The committee, after hearing only half the witnesses opposing the bill, and all those supporting the measure, finally adjourned at 8:35 last night without reporting the bill.

Max Gordon, representing the State Committee of the Communist Party, termed the American business and economic system "unsound" as he leaned on the chair of Senator Schwartzwald, sponsor of the chain store tax bill. Schwartzwald beamed at the witness as Gordon testified in favor of the measure whicch would place a graduated tax of from $10 to $550 on all chain stores in this state.

John Watson, of Albany, representing the National Retail Dry Goods Association of New York, told the committee that, "if the Legislature wishes to eliminate chain stores, let it be done squarely and openly, through a measure informing the public of what is proposed. Taxation should be for revenue only, never for punitive purposes. Such measures represent a clear cut abuse of the taxing power.

Others who voiced opposition to the chain store measure included the following: C. F. Phillips, Professor of Economics, Colgate University; Ward Clark, Oneida, N. Y., chain-store landlord; Fred Porter, Crown Point, ex-senator and president of the Grange League Federation Exchange; Henry Ortega, New York, Manager of the New York and New England Apple Institute, Inc.; George Cushman, Riverhead, of the Long Island Produce and Fertilizer Company; Charles E. Sinnigen, secretary and treasurer of the Central Union Label Council of Greater New York, speaking for the American Federation of Labor.

Just before the hearing adjourned, Abraham Felder, a small business man from New York insisted on being heard. Mr. Felder said, "This is not a tax, it is a menace to this country."

At the conclusion of the hearing, Senator Schwartzwald proudly announced, "This is the longest hearing ever held in the Capitol".

Maple Grading Sets Available From State

Albany - Maple producers may determine syrup grades by using the simple testing-sets available from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The set includes four small bottles in a cut-out block of wood. Three of the bottles contain colored solutions, prepared in the Department to conform with the Unitde States Standards, to match the color of Fancy, Grade 1 and Grade 2 syrup, while the fourth bottle is filled with the producer's syrup and inserted in the block for comparison with the master colors.

Since the colors of the standard solutions fade slightly, the Department recommends replacing the sets annually and not to use any set for more than two seasons in order to get accurate results. The sets are available for fifty cents, postpaid, from the Bureau of Markets of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets at Albany. Since the sets were developed in 1935 more than 1,000 have been purchased by New York state producers, according to the Bureau.

Four-Cent Tax On Gas in N. Y. for Another Year

State Capitol Building, Albany— Despite the fact that Assemblymen William M. Stuart and Guy W. Cheney, representing Steuben county, voted against the fourth cent in the gasoline tax the motorists are to have to bear it for another year. This bill was passed in the Assembly by a slow roll call vote.

When asked his reason for voting against the fourth cent to the gas tax, Assemblyman Stuart replied, "I voted in the negative as a protest against the way the funds from the motor vehicle taxes have been converted for other purposes than the improvement of our highway system".

Vigorous opposition as well as support was voiced on this tax at a public hearing prior to the voting of the bill in the Assembly. According to a report published by U. S. Bureau of Public Roads for 1936 New York State led all the rest in the amounts and percentages of highway funds diverted for other purposes. The report shows that $59,790,000 or 58.2 per cent was diverted.

Stuart Petitions For Rathbone-Canisteo Road

State Capitol Building, Albany—Climaxing a vigorous campaign was the presentation here this week by William M. Stuart, Assemblyman of the second district, Steuben County, to Commissioner A. W. Brandt, Division of Highways, of a petition containing more than two thousand signatures, requesting that a state road be built between Rathbone and Canisteo.

Following the interview in which Assemblyman Guy W. Cheney of Corning supported Mr. Stuart in the request for this road, Assemblyman Stuart received a letter from Mr. Brandt which stated in part, "With further reference to our talk this morning relative to the Canisteo-Rathbone road, I shall be glad to go over this road with you, Assemblyman Cheney and District Engineer Brumm sometime this spring or summer".

Although Commissioner Brandt did not commit himself definitely he pointed out to Mr. Stuart and Mr. Cheney that the building of this road seemed more possible to him since their interview.

"My first impression from previous correspondence I had with my engineers was that it was going to be a difficult road to build from the standpoint of state highway and that it meant the moving over of what I was given to believe was a considerable of the Erie Railroad and the Canisteo River", declared the Commissioner.'

Assemblyman Stuart commented, "The completion of this road would shorten by several miles the distance between Hornell and Corning and divert much traffic through Hornell and Canisteo".

Signers of the petition contained residents of Hornell, Canisteo, Cameron and Rathbone. Supervisor David W. Scribner of Cameron was most active and showed untiring efforts in obtaining so many signers.

Home Bureau Leaders Meet to Take Stock

"Every business has an annual inventory and audit of books and today's meeting to review the work of the Home Bureau during the past year sems to me to be the stock-taking time for the County Home Bureau", said Miss Orrilla Wright, speaking to Home Bureau representatives who recently gathered at a conference for leaders and officers of local units. The meeting was planned by members of the Home Bureau Executive Committee who took part in the afternoon's program.

The meeting opened with a lunch served by members of the Savona Home Bureau. Representatives from ten Home Bureau units attended. Following lunch the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Gordon Conderman of Howard, acting chairman. Reports of the project work taken in the county during the past year were given by committee members as follows: Housing, Mrs. Arling Cobb of Greenwood; Landscaping, Mrs. Helen Reynolds of Painted Post; Clothing, Mrs. Aaron Putnam of Wheeler; Recreation, Mrs. Gordon Conderman of Howard; Foods and Nutritions, Mrs. Harry Spence of Hornell.

Mrs. Mathewson, county agent, outlined briefly the suggested plan for program-making in units. Unit representatives will conduct a similar type of meeting in their own group within the next month. Project leaders will then report program requests from their units at special project summary meetings. Housing and Household Management leaders will meet on April 21 and Clothing and Foods and Nutrition leaders will meet on May 12. Leaders in other projects such as Health, Landscaping and recreation, will give their unit suggestions to the local secretary who will include them with her report of the unit's summary meeting.

This Week In Sports

By the Grandstander

Addison and vicinity basketball fans will see some smart basketball if present plans of the Merchant squad are carried. Invitations have been extended to eight teams in this vicinity to participate in an invitation tournament to be held the week following the close of the league season. Teams invited are Corning, Westfield, Painted Post and many others. Entrance fees will be used to finance the tournament and for prizes.

—o—

Judging by the exhibition of last week against the Elcos, the Merchants are going into first place in the second half of the New York-Penn Basketball League. Some good healthy support by local fans in the home games will aid the team in its fight.

—o—

Congratulations to the members of the Addison High School Ag team for their valiant fight in winning 14 straight games this season without a loss. This is the fifth consecutive year the team has not lost a championship. The team plays in Hammondsport tonight and I'm sure the people of Addison and vicinity wish them well.

—o—

There is baseball talk in the air locally. Some of the players on former scholastic teams and members of the Merchants squad want to get started as soon as the ground is ready.

—o—

Wonder when the game between the Merchants and High School Independents will be played?

—o—

Columbia Larrapin Lou Gehrig has signed on the dotted line for $39,000 to play ball during the coming season. He will be the highest paid player during the coming season.

—o—

Dizzy Dean has become a modest and shrinking violet this season since he took his bawling out and reduced salary. Antics which formerly amused the sports populace are now taboo by the great one. Sports fans like to hear wind but won't pay to see it in action.

—o—

Old Timers have considerably upset the dopesters in the boxing ring during the past few months, what with the return of Braddock and Baer. Experience does count.

—o—

United States government tests in the Bureau of Standards have proved that the so-called lively ball of the American League is no more lively than the slow ball of the National League. So home runs this season will be a matter of push as usual.

—o—

Western newspapers are suggesting that the Rose Bowl football classic be shifted to Los Angeles Coliseum, which has a capacity of 15,000 more persons than the Pasadena Rose Bowl which holds 87,000. Pasadena does not warm up to the idea owing to the football game being held in conjunction with the Tournament of Roses.

—o—

Grandstand coaches had their say in Kansas recently. At a certain game admission tickets entitled the purchaser to vote for the starting lineup and to pick a board of five men, outside the college to run the game. The plan worked great and the Kansas team outpointed the opponents by one point. Then the grandstanders resigned with a 1,000 average of victories.

State Should Approve Replaced Tail Lamps

Albany, N. Y. March 15—Broken tail lamp lenses should be replaced with those approved by the State for their "reflecting ability", the Motor Vehicle Bureau warned motorists today.

August W. Kallmeyer, Safety Engineer of the Bureau, pointed out while reflectors are required on all automobiles, only those approved by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles are acceptable under the existing law.

"Automobile manufacturers have provided all recent passenger vehicles with a reflector placed in the tail lamp," Mr. Kallmeyer explained. "However, if this lens is broken, the owner should take particular care in replacing it with one approved by the State. Otherwise, he must go to the expense of purchasing a separate reflector to avoid violating the law."

There are many types of tail lamp lenses on the market at the present time, it was pointed out. In securing replacements, motorists should determine from the dealer whether a lens is approved by the State, or write to the State Motor Vehicle Bureau at Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Decker, East Bloomfield, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Armstrong, Maple street, the latter being a daughter of the Deckers.

CHAPTER CHATTER

The Addison Aggies will journey to Hammondsport this week where they will play their last game of the season. This game will be a play-off between Addison and Hammondsport for the county championship.

The essay contest which is sponsored by the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association was won this year by Bill Colburn. The subject of this year's essay was "Working for the Cost of Production of Milk". A prize has been offered by the local unit of the league and this will be awarded at a meeting of the locals later in the year, at which time the winning essay will be read.

The four highest ranking papers which were written by Bill Colburn, Joe Coleman, Ronald McCaig and Lawrence Howland have been forwarded to League headquarters where they will compete for district awards.

Bang's Disease

Printed verbatim

Bang's disease is a job that the Ag IV boys are doing at the present time. It is a disease that should takes lots of atention of every farm that has a good clean herd of cattle. If you have the disease you should check it now for better results from your herd. There is but one way to check the disease and that is by way of a agglutination test or blood test which means the same. This test is taken by your veterinarian and sent to the nearest labotary to be tested. In this way you may be sure whether you have any reactors or spreaders in the barn and if you do you should sell them or put them in a separate barn by themselves so as not to spread it. Do not stop at one test because the germ may be in the barn and the cow may have picked it up after the test so be sure and the test should be repeated afterwards until you are sure you have a clean herd and then test twice a year afterwards because it might enter in some other way. After you have found a infected cow you should disinfect every place she has stood or been to get good results. The local farmer are taking the advantage of the private and government test.

—o—

Friday night the local F. F. A. Chapter will have charge of the Borden Grange entertainment. The young members who attend Addison school will sponsor an hour entertainment. The entertainment will consist of a play "Safety in the Home and on the Farm". Skits will be put on by the members and the Hill Billy orchestra which is composed of Lawrence Howland, Eldon Converse, Burdette Miles, Kenneth Root, John Cole, Warren Perkins and Lynn Strait will furnish music.

Those who will sponsor play and put on skits are: Clifford Lunger, Doris Martin, Lillian Newland, Douglas Martin, Edith Gould, Richard Snyder, Elva Byron and Harold Martin.

—o—

The Farm Bureau is holding a horse demonstration at the Homer Reynolds farm April 4, which the Ag IV boys are going to attend. At this demonstration a horse expert from Cornell College will show horses and their defects and fit collars and harness.

—o—

In controlling mites the best measures for control are to have clean surroundings, good light, and a suitable house.

Mites will live in cracks and crevices through the day; therefore, you should have as much light in the poultry house as possible. At night they stay on the fowls. Black Leaf "40" as a spray is good to keep the mites off the poultry but it is very expensive. Kerosene or old automobile oil make a good solution because it is cheap. It is very hard to keep mites out of the poultry house as sparrows and people going from one poultry house to another will carry them.

The Rambler

The files of the Addison Advertiser go back to 1858. Interesting news events through the years in Addison and vicinity are recorded in these files. One of the members of the staff is going to write items from these files each week. He will write under the head of Old Timer and asks that anyone wishing to know of events of the past and have them published, write to him, giving the approximate date and he will seek through the files and rewrite the story.

—o—

Organizations are responding well to the appeal to date their events on the community calendar to prevent conflicts of major events in the village. Many conflicts have already been prevented.

—o—

It is getting along seed time now and it is a good time to sit down and think out what you are going to plant and where. I'm reminded of the city fellow who drew a plan of his wants and discovered he would need a 50-acre plot to plant it all so gave up the idea of planting at all.

—o—

Now that spring is coming people are beginning to think of repairs and Mayor Sisto suggests that householders tear up their walks, cut away the roots of trees lifting the walk and make straight the ways of walking in Addison.

—o—

Almost broke my fast on candy Sunday. The Boss of the manor and I were invited out and the hostess placed a dish of delicious, fragrant chocolate candy under my nose. What a break.

—o—

Some one's rabbit got loose Monday night in Steuben street. I saw it bounding across the street and duck into a house near the Bill Miller house, formerly the Varn house. It looked like a tame rabbit to me and was sure in a great hurry.

—o—

Pete Laffkas is going to have a new suit for Easter. Pete is an inveterate cigar smoker and during Lent he is trying his will power by refraining from smoking. When he feels the urge, he drops the cigar money in a box and feels better. The box will be opened just before Easter to provide the suit.

—o—

Two pheasants weathered the winter in Addison I'm told by a Front street resident who saw two of them Wednesday contentedly munching corn left from the harvest last fall. This speaks well for our mild northern winter during the past year.

—o—

Dr. Auringer was quite surprised when he was presented a floor lamp by his class in first aid Tuesday night. He well deserves this present on the basis of devotion of time and energies to this work for which he received no compensation.

—o—

There are 13 charter members of the Addison Grange still living. This is just another proof of the often repeated statement that this vicinity is conducive to good living and many years of life. The Grange will be 40 years old April 1, 1938.

—o—

The success of dictators leads others to try like deeds. The success of Herr Hitler in taking Austria from the map and making it a German state without bloodshed shows what devotion to an ideal can do. One man had the idea, sold it to thousands of others and today is dictator supreme in his sphere.

—o—

The late Guy Comfort of Perry wrote in his column "Crumbs of Comfort" just before he died this thought. "A good policeman never needs civil service to hold his job nor does an efficient teacher need tenure of office to protect her."

That's all.

Girl Scouts Rehearse Play for Anniversary

This week marks the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Girl Scout movement by Juliette Low, a southern woman with a great interest and devotion to young girls. She and her associates formed a group to provide inspiration for young girls and to give them an insight into arts and crafts which might benefit them through their lives.

Out of this movement has grown one of the most powerful youth organizations in America. It is a melting pot of races, religions and personalities. The teaching of the patrol method of doing tasks makes for cooperation between girls which teaches one of the fundamentals of life and citizenship.

Addison Girl Scouts and their leaders are cooperating in this national movement and birthday party. As a preliminary they decorated store windows in Main Street with equipment and dolls to show various phases of work. These displays are in the Laffkas and Sackett & Ttaberh-wP eSHRDLUET

"An exhibit on an investiture ceremony is in the Hubbs electric store."

The climax of the week's activities will come with a play to be presented in high school assembly Friday morning. This will be called "The Trail Blazers". Scouts and leaders will take part in the production. Parents and friends of the girls and of Scouting are invited to witness this play at 8:50 Friday morning in the high school auditorium.

The annual Mother and Daughter banquet will be held Monday April 4.

Aggies Play Hammondsport For County Lead

Coach Frank Finnerty's Agriculture team of the Addison High School will play at Hammondsport tonight, Thursday, for the Steuben County Agricultural honors. The locals have won this championship for the past five years and with reasonable breaks tonight should bring home the county championship.

So far this season the squad has won 14 games and lost none. Most of the games have been won by scores that showed the superiority of the local basketeers, both on the home courts and in games played on foreign courts. Many Ag students will accompany the team to the game.

Merchants Trim Elkland in Final Minutes

The Addison Merchants defeated the Elkland Elcos here Friday night to close the campaign for the year on the home court in the New York-Penn League. Both teams played along fairly even during the contest with the visitors having a slight edge through the first three periods. The locals then put on a spurt in the final quarter that netted the winning baskets.

The visitors' scoring aces were Mulaski and Williams with 12 points each. Robbins, Heidrick and Grange formed the trio leading the local attack.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Bicycles Must Have Horn and Lights Says Bovee

Bicycles are being confiscated by police in many counties, cities and villages for not having proper equipment, according to word received this week by Chief of Police Elmer Bovee and he is asked to proceed along similar lines to prevent accidents from and by bicycles.

Present laws require all bicycles to have front and rear reflectors visible 200 feet, a light, horn and sufficient brakes. Chief Bovee states there are many wheels in this vicinity that do not meet the state requirements and he will be forced to take the wheels away from operators unless the above equipment is on each machine.

Youngsters ride the streets of the village and vicinity at night without this equipment and with high speed motor cars, are in danger of being struck when they have no lights or reflectors. It is to prevent accidents to bicycle operators that the drastic action will be taken.

Formation of Baldwin Hook and Ladder Told in Story From Files

Advertisers of years ago reveal interesting information relative to formation of hose, hook and ladder and bucket brigades in Addison—Many names famous in village history on rosters—Readers asked to send requests for file stories to Old Timer.

By the Old Timer

Taken from the files of the Advertiser for March, 1877.

The project of organizing and equipping a hook and ladder and bucket company, in the Village, is being pushed forward with energy, and is meeting with such encouragement from the citizens as to almost warrant its speedy success. In view of the fact that a special election of the taxpayers has been called to vote upon an appropriation for this purpose, we publish the following papers, that our readers may know what is being done and who are doing it. We reserve all comments for the present.

The Company

We the undersigned, residents of the Village of Addison, Steuben County, New York, do hereby agree to and with each other, for the purpose of organizing and sustaining a Hook and Ladder and Bucket Company, to become members of said proposed organization and aid and sustain the same to the best of our ability.

Provided the authorities of said village procure for the use of said proposed company the necessary and suitable equipments for said company.

George I. True and G. H. Brewster appeared before the board as a committee and presented a written request of 50 taxpayers praying that the board call a special election for the purpose of voting upon an appropriation of $700 to buy equipment for a hook and ladder and bucket company.

The board ordered the special election and it was held at the Engine House in said village, on Tuesday, May 1, 1877 Polls opened at 12 o'clock M. and closed at 3 P. M.,

Thetotal number of ballots cast was ninety-five, of which forty-eight were in favor of the appropriation and forty-seven were against.

From the By-Laws of the Addison Fire Department of 1882, we take pleasure in giving our readers the following information.

"The Addison Fire Department as organized by the Board of Trustees of the Corporation of the Village of Addison, shall consist of Harden Hose Company, No. 1, Phoenix Fire Company, No. 2, Baldwin Hook and Ladder Company, No. 3, and such other companies as may hereafter be organized."

The Old Timer will be pleased to seek through the files and print stories from the past, stories desired by our readers. If there is any event you know of and would like to know what the newspaper account of that event was, write to the Old Timer, giving him the approximate date and he will seek through the files and reprint the story. He knows there are many events in the past in Addison on which more information is desired, to settle arguments and to provide a link with the past and present.

Dairy Cattle Health Will Be Emphasized

Profitable dairy farm management depends upon numerous factors among which dairy cattle health is one of the most important. With this thought in mind farm bureau men have planned two all-day meetings to discuss this subject at Canisteo Grange Hall, March 21 and Avoca Grange Hall, March 22.

C. G. Bradt, expert animal husbandman in all phases of dairy cattle health, will outline a preventative program in such problems as Bang's abortion and mastitis.

Farmers of this district will be particularly interested in these subjects since health of dairy herds more often than not spells the difference between profit and loss in dairy management.

All interested farmers will be on hand at one of these meetings which begin at 10 A. M. and will be concluded at 3 P. M. Lunch will be provided for those in attendance.

Hemlock—Flour ground here has gone into the state championship cherry pies for the past three years. Contestants vary each year.
